Memory is life's greatest gift. Memory provides us with cognitive function. It is memory and cognitive function that makes us who we are. Yet, we are led to believe that age causes our brain to shrink, robs us of memory and may even impose some sort of dementia. That is a myth. Your brain shrinks; you lose memory and develop some form of dementia because your brain is not healthy. It can be prevented or corrected. STABILITY FOR MOBILITY

Instructor: Galeet BenZoin

Stability for Mobility is not just a catchy phrase. It is a method designed to increase one's stability and balance by improving overall body's strength. Research has shown that as we age, we lose muscle strength which is directly related to loss of stability and balance. Stability for Mobility is designed to prevent strength and mobility loss. Light weights and resistance bands are used to achieve personal strength goals. Each participant's unique strength and balance needs will be addressed by explaining and demonstrating correct execution of each exercise. Participants leave each class empowered and energized. Light weights and resistance bands are provided.
